

Computing Research Association Associate Academic Dues Schedule

Thank you for your interest in becoming a member of the Computing Research Association. Please print and mail the second page of this document and your payment to CRA at the address below. The current membership year for academic members lasts from July 1, 2008 to June 30, 2009.

To Qualify as a Member:

CRA Membership consists of organizations that can demonstrate active research and publication programs in fields closely related to computing. Although membership is broad-based, the CRA Board of Directors reserves the right to make a final determination of membership status.

Calculating Dues:

Start at the top of the dues calculation table, find the first line where the research funding total and the number of researchers is true for your department. In cases where an institution's computing research is spread across more than one department, CRA prefers separate memberships for each department. If a School or College wishes to join and is paying for multiple departments: calculate the dues rate for each department -- without double-counting shared researchers or funding -- and combine the results.

The dues levels reflect the 66% discount that we extend to our Associate academic members.

Research Funding:

This is the total external amount spent on research and includes direct costs and overhead. Internal university funds and education-oriented funds are excluded. Expenditures and indirect costs from government and industrial research grants are included. Calculate your research expenditure by using whatever method is accepted by your department. Use the most recent 12-month period for which data are readily available.

Who can be Counted as a Researcher?
